Lissan Annual Report

September 2023

A Note from Lissan's CEO

Dearest community,

We are thrilled to share our 2022-2023 annual report with you, summarizing our activities over the past year. This year was full of significant growth and development: we increased the scope of our activities from one project with 500 students a year in 25 classes to three core projects and a handful of smaller projects with over 1,300 students a year in 67 groups. We expanded our activities in East Jerusalem neighborhoods to over 15 locations, including Kafr Aqab and Shuafat refugee camp on the other side of the separation barrier. These neighborhoods suffer severe neglect and have limited to no access to essential services. We created new partnerships, including, among others, with the Jerusalem Municipal Employment Authority, Intel, and the Open University.

Expanding the scope of our activities brought with it growth and diversity within our staff. We grew from a staff of 5 part-time employees to a staff of 8. We invested time and resources in developing new study and enrichment materials, and developed a comprehensive monitoring and evaluation plan for each project.

The statistics presented in this report show the dramatic influence our Hebrew courses have on the lives of our students, who expressed an increased sense of self-confidence and independence in navigating the Jerusalem public domain and municipal and governmental bureaucracy, better access to healthcare services, and success in integrating into the workforce and higher education. In Jerusalem today, Hebrew knowledge is more than an essential need and a basic right, it opens doors to opportunities and serves as a tool to improve the quality of life of our students and their families.

An enormous thank you to you, our partners, volunteers, coordinators, teachers, community members, and our generous donors - for believing in us and for being an integral part of our work. Our achievements over the past year would not have been possible without you.

In the current political climate, with the rise in race based violence in Jerusalem and throughout the region, Lissan will continue to advance our vision of a more equal, shared Jerusalem for all of its inhabitants. We will continue to stand alongside our students and support their right to dignity, equality, and freedom.

Yours,
Talia Vekshtein
CEO

About Lissan

Lissan-לִסָּאן-لسان (Arabic for language or tongue) is a grassroots non-profit organization that promotes gender and social equality in Jerusalem. We seek to bridge the gap between East and West Jerusalem by advancing linguistic justice and a vision of a bilingual Hebrew-Arabic Jerusalem. We do this by providing practical and accessible Hebrew language classes based on the needs of East Jerusalemite women. Our courses provide these women with the language skills necessary to independently navigate Jerusalem's public domain and access resources, rights, and opportunities to advance themselves personally and professionally.

East Jerusalem and the Language Barrier

Jerusalem is home to over 984,500 residents, approximately 61% of which are Jewish and 39% are Palestinian, with the vast majority of Palestinians living in East Jerusalem.

61% of Palestinian residents of Jerusalem live in poverty.

Only 47% of Palestinian residents of East Jerusalem participate in the workforce.

74% of East Jerusalemite Palestinian women are unemployed, citing lack of Hebrew as one of the central barriers to finding employment.

73% of East Jerusalemite Palestinian women have weak to no Hebrew, versus the 28.7% of Palestinian men who have weak to no Hebrew.

Most essential services, including healthcare and government services, are provided mainly in Hebrew, making it harder, if not impossible, for East Jerusalemites to access their rights.

Lissan's Theory of Change

If we provide subsidized Hebrew courses to East Jerusalemite women that are culturally fit and meet their needs, and if we accompany courses with information about accessing rights, employment and academic prep, then more women will be able to confidently navigate the public sphere in Jerusalem, access rights and resources, better their socio-economic status, and find work and pursue higher education.

If we create a stable community of Jewish and Palestinian Jerusalemites working together to advance linguistic justice, then Jerusalem residents will be able to better communicate and work together towards a more equal Jerusalem.

If we expose authorities to the realities and needs of East Jerusalemites, then they will adapt/change the existing policies and services to fit East Jerusalemites' needs. We will work together to provide subsidized Hebrew courses in East Jerusalem that meet the needs of residents.

Medabrot Ivrit - Women Speaking Hebrew

האוניברסיטה העברית בירושלים
THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY OF JERUSALEM

Lissan's flagship project in partnership with the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, MATI East Jerusalem, Mini-Active, the Willy Brandt Center, and more. Medabrot Ivrit - Women Speaking Hebrew in the Negev

Women Speaking Hebrew in the Negev launched in partnership with Ben Gurion University in the Negev and Ajeec-Nisped in 2021-2022, replicating the Medabrot Ivrit - Women Speaking Hebrew model for Bedouin women in the Negev region. For this project, Lissan specially adapted our textbooks and learning materials to be more applicable for Bedouin culture and life in southern Israel. This year, two courses were held in Hura with occasional visits to the Ben Gurion University campus for practice, enrichment, and experience.

Teimot Ivrit - A Taste of Hebrew

A project offering Hebrew courses to East Jerusalemite Palestinian men and women in community centers throughout East Jerusalem. This project aims to open the door to learning Hebrew by making courses geographically and financially accessible. This project is in partnership with the Municipality of Jerusalem. In the project's first year, 80% of students successfully completed their courses, and many wish to continue learning Hebrew. We currently have an over 500 person waiting list to join one of our A Taste of Hebrew courses.

Hebrew for Employment

Lissan operates occupational Hebrew courses targeting specific population groups and professionals that require Hebrew to integrate, or as a preliminary step towards integrating into the workforce. We offer intensive courses of 180-200 hours, providing a response to the specific needs of each group, adjusting learning materials for each group. This project targets a variety of different populations and professions, including: cleaning workers, daycare assistants, at-risk youth, small business owners, computer science and engineering alumni seeking high-tech jobs, Open University students, and more. As of July 2023, 556 students have taken part, or are currently enrolled in one of our 31 occupational Hebrew courses. This project is in partnership with the Municipal Employment Authority, and other government programs and organizations.

Other Projects:

Project Aleph

Project Aleph is a unique partnership between Lissan, MEET, 50:50 Startups, and PIP that provides alumni of these Israeli-Palestinian tech projects with Hebrew and Arabic language courses. In our pilot, in partnership with B8 of Hope, we held 3 Hebrew language courses on Zoom and 1 Arabic language course in Jerusalem.

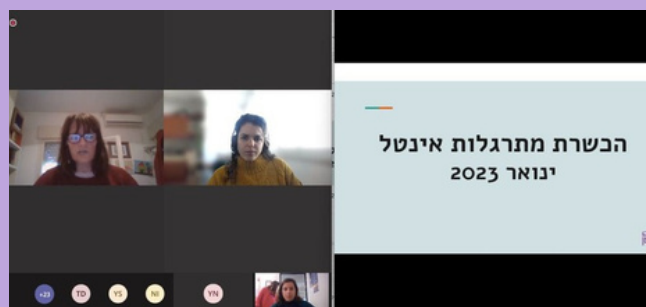

Access Your Rights

Access Your Rights is a series of lectures and mini-courses offered to Lissan students on accessing rights and government services, digital literacy, finding and keeping employment in Hebrew-speaking environments, and operating a small business in Jerusalem. This project also includes one-on-one support for students' bureaucratic needs.

Practice Your Hebrew

Practice your Hebrew is a project in partnership with Intel which matches mid-higher level students from Medabrot Ivrit - Women Speaking Hebrew with volunteers from Intel to practice their Hebrew one-on-one over the phone. Participants are provided with a series of predefined topics, and each conversation is followed by a practice exercise to be completed by the student, allowing our students to become more confident in their Hebrew speaking skills.

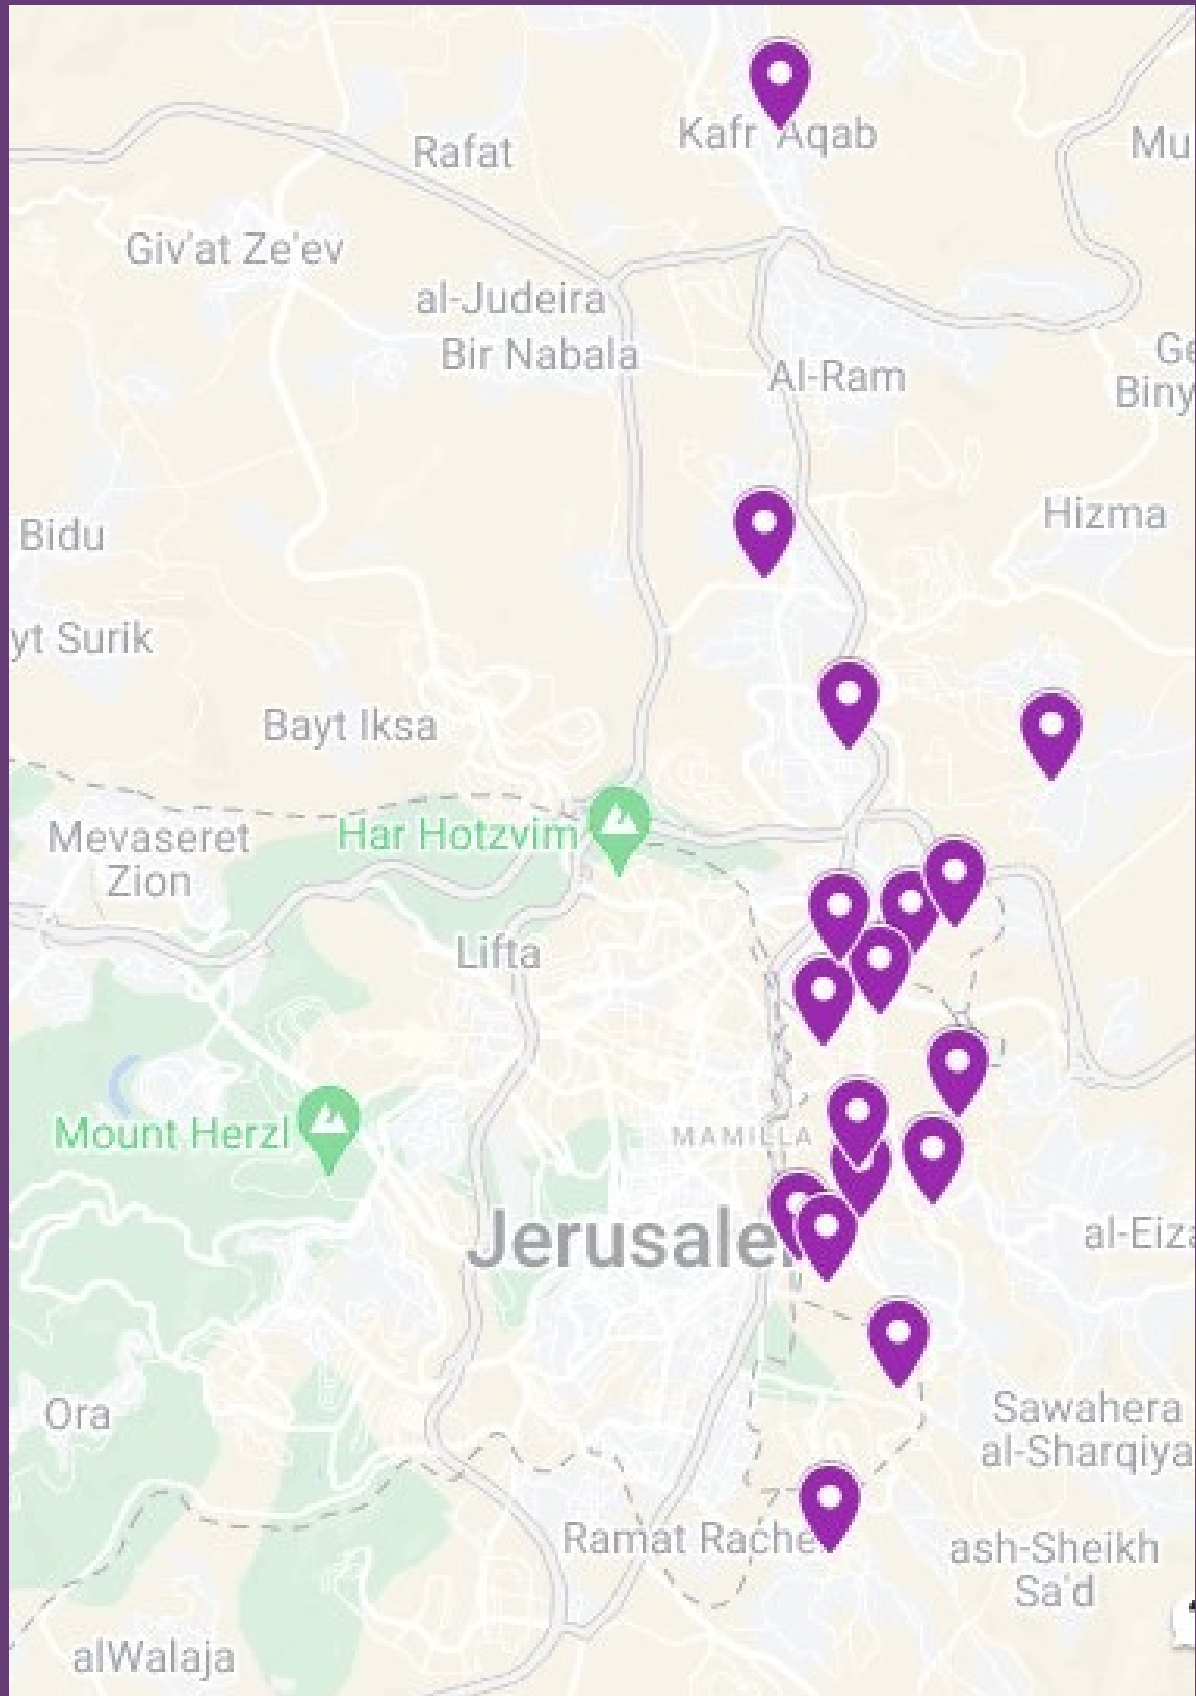

Arabic for the Community

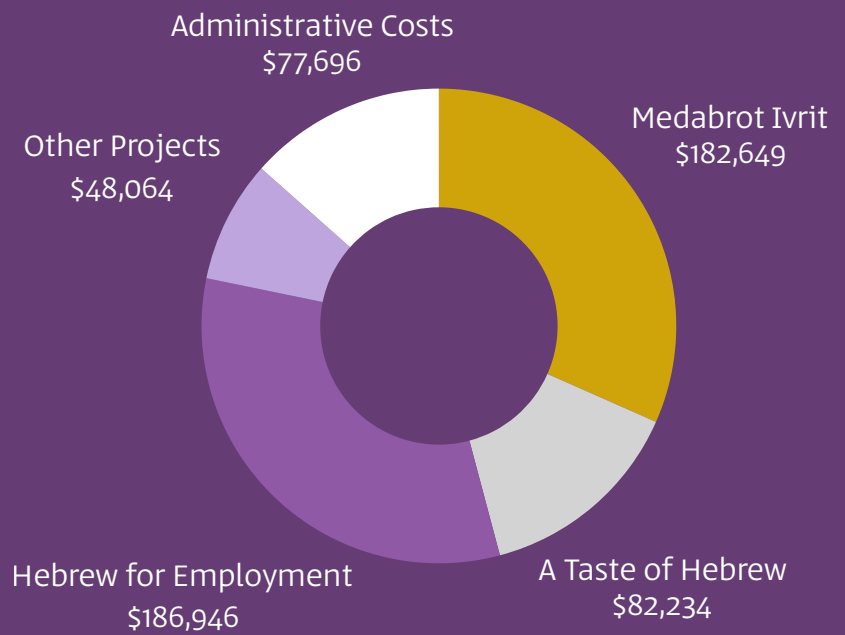

After a hiatus, we have revived Lissan's Arabic course for members of the Lissan community. This course is heavily subsidized, participants pay a symbolic fee, because we believe that it is incredibly important for social activists and Lissan community members to be able to communicate in both Hebrew and Arabic equally, and for both languages to be equally present in the public domain.
